Our two handed Kukri Machete offers so many advantages as a tool or weapon that it's hard to know where to begin when attempting to describe them. Small trees saplings, vines, thorn bushes, cane, reeds, bamboo, corn stocks and sugar cane all fall to its over sized blade and very long handle. When two or four legged predators threaten, the two handed Kukri will make short work of them as well, as its broad, down turned blade features a surprisingly sharp point capable of piercing the toughest hide or lopping off the most massive limb. And, as an added unexpected bonus the two handed Kukri can be thrown up to 10 yards with surprising accuracy and incredible penetration.
